SYSELEDOBSIS AND PASSADUMKEAG

[From Forest and Stream.]

The northern and eastern portions of the counties of Penobscot and Washington, in the old Pine Tree State, contain a remarkable lake region, unsurpassed in extent and diversity of scenery, affording variety for the sportsman who, with rod and gun, is willing to rough it for ten days. The everlasting hills and meadows are supplied in unlimited quantity with deer, black bear and ruffed grouse, and the lakes and rivers with duck, land locked salmon and trout. The variety of routes this region affords is not the least of its attractions, and has only to become more widely known to be visited and appreciated by a large number of sportsmen who cannot afford the expense of long trips West.

Parties can leave Boston by rail at night, and next morning reach the pleasant town of Lincoln, Me., the most central point from which to reach the lakes. A charming drive of twenty miles to the town of Springfield brings you to Gowell's, at the head of Duck Lake, where you can find Indians and canoes. Crossing Duck and Junior lakes, through Junior stream into Grand Lake, all well stocked with land locked salmon, you have the choice of several routes, either of them offering sufficient attractions to render them enjoyable, and not to be forgotten. You may cross Grand Lake to the falls, and by a short carry enter Big Lake, thence into Long Lake to Princeton. Carrying by the mills a short distance you can continue your route by the St. Croix River to Calais. At Grand Lake falls is unexcelled land locked salmon fishing in the season. There Mr. Atkins, the agreeable fish commissioner, has charge of the breeding houses, and has had uniform success, tending fish from this station all over the country.

Another route from Grand Lake, some distance longer, is through Pocompus Lake and stream into the beautiful Syseledobsis Lake, crossing a short carry into the chain lakes, head waters of Machias River, down which you can reach Machias. In this region is one of the most remarkable watersheds in existence. The lakes—Chain, First, Second, Third, Duck, Unknown and several smaller ones—are nestled together in a comparatively small space, all easy of access to each other by short carries. We have here the waters of Machias, St. Croix, Union and Penobscot rivers. From this point many excursions may be made into the surrounding wilderness, or by lakes almost endless in extent, and one can pass the time with profit and enjoyment.

Still another route presents itself from Syseledobsis Lake, which is the one we have just completed. I subjoin a few notes from a journal kept during the trip, trusting they will be of sufficient interest to warrant their reading.

Through the genial landlord of the Lincoln House, Mr. David Stockbridge, familiarly known as "David," we secured canoes and a man to do general work, who proved efficient in the canoe and an excellent cook. Under David's good management we had the canoe and supplies properly loaded and sent on ahead and on the arrival of the train, Tuesday, Sept. 9th, he was in readiness with a first-class team to convey us to Gowell's. It had rained during the previous night sufficient to lay the dust, and we had a most agreeable ride through the green wilderness over a good road, reaching Duck Lake about 3 P. M. On the shore of the lake is a club house, owned by Boston parties, under the care of Mr. Gowell, and twice a year they visit here, having fine success and exhilarating sport hunting and fishing. We shortly had the canoes afloat, loaded and under way. Our man Henry was in charge of one canoe and "Brick Top" having been over the route before, was appointed guide of the squadron, and took the lead with the other canoe. Besides the two mentioned, our party consisted of Mr. E. V. Cross, of Lawrence, Mass., an expert disciple of "Izaak," and a thorough sportsman, and Prof. Mills well known in Eastern Maine as a "dead shot" and taxidermist, and for his agreeable loquacity on hunting subjects, which afforded us much enjoyment and instruction. We paddled leisurely across the lake and entered its stream, nearly hidden by dense alders, and being exceedingly narrow and rapid we soon reached the beautiful, clear water of Junior, as the sun, sinking behind the high ridge on our right, was illuminating the entire surface in gorgeous colors, which we accepted as a welcome and good omen for our success. About a mile below the mouth of the stream we found on our left an excellent camping spot, and while some were engaged in gathering boughs and making camp the rest were busily employed in getting supper. David had accompanied us thus far for the purpose of being with us one night in the camp, and he proved a pioneer in the work.

Camp and supper were soon in readiness, and under the combined inspiring effects of juniper tea, camp fire and a feeling of freedom from all care, the Professor began a relation of some of his wonderful experiences by land and water. He had the field entirely to himself, and we listened long in admiration until he began a thrilling narration of his experience at Bar Harbor during a gale of wind, when we quietly dropped out one by one, and left him talking to the stars. We had an excellent bed, and slept tranquilly until the rays of the rising sun, shining in our faces, awakened us to a day of sport. While we were seated about the breakfast table an exclamation from the Professor turned our attention to the lake. His experienced eye had discerned in the distance a flock of ducks approaching us. We all made preparations for their reception, and began the day with seven black ducks, handsomely stopped by the Professor and "Brick Top." While Henry was gone to Gowell's with David, we broke camp and were ready to start on his return. The day was warm and clear and the six mile stretch of water before us was calm and transparent as glass. The numerous islands at the head of this lake, closely crowded together, somewhat interfere with its outline, but after passing them it expands into a beautiful shape nearly two miles in width and the shores handsomely wooded. Near the islands land-locked salmon are found in plenty, of good weight and game. Vose tried them with good success, while the Professor and the rest of us gave exhibition of skill in shooting king-fishers on the wing.

The high ridge on our right, about a mile in width, is all that separates us from the Syseledobsis lakes, and is the home of the deer in great numbers, many of them being taken every season. We paddled lazily along, reaching Junior stream at noon, and proceeded down its placid length, not a sound disturbing the solemn quiet about us—conducive to reflection and study. Near its mouth the stream widens considerably, its shores becoming meadow and marsh. This place formed a perfect rendezvous for wood, black duck, and blue-winged teal. The Professor shot very handsome specimens of wood drake and blue winged teal, while our success was excellent in shooting snipe and sheldrake. A tongue of land about twenty feet wide on our left extends up the stream nearly a mile, and we heard the waves of Grand Lake beating on its shore long before we entered it. Passing through just a narrow break in this narrow strip of land, we enter at once on the lake, most appropriately named Grand. Looking by the point of Big Island, the expanse of water seems almost limitless until we notice the high hills about the stream at the foot of the lake, blue in the distance. The shores of the lake seem almost straight, looking like a huge canal but there are deep coves, in crossing which a person with a canoe will have to exercise due caution when there is any wind. We took dinner on the beach, with this handsome view before us, and Vose, noticing the peculiar formation of the point of land opposite us, drew from the Professor this story, which he told with thrilling effect:—

"Several years ago the enterprising lumbermen of Calais sent them into this region to secure the pine. During the season of rafting, men were employed in squads of three and four to pick up the scattered logs. One of these squads, while engaged, went ashore on this point to prepare their breakfast. Just as they got it in readiness they discovered their batteau adrift, and one of them started to recover it, saying in reply to one of his mates who urged him to eat his breakfast first that he would get that batteau or eat his breakfast in h—. He swam out to the boat and put his hands on to it to get in, when he gave one despairing yell and went down. After several hours search his mates recovered his body, took it back to the point, and tied it to a tree near the shore with a two inch hawser, and then started to the settlement to procure a coffin. They returned the next day, bearing the coffin, but found their mate gone and the hawser broken in two. They left the coffin and retraced their steps to the settlement, saying their mate had been dragged into the lake by a large serpent, whose track they plainly saw."

From that day the point has been known as "Coffin Point," and the story of the man's disappearance is firmly believed by the Professor and every one about the mills below. The Professor confirms this story by finding the bottom of the coffin five years afterward, while there winter fishing, and using it to make a pair of snow shoes.

We passed into the lovely Pocompus Lake, apparently as primitive and wild as when the Indian alone canoed its waters and hunted its majestic shores. Entering its stream, we passed up two miles and camped for the night. While supper was in progress "Brick Top" started on an exploring expedition on his own account, and shortly returned with the intelligence that we were on the right stream, but a few rods below Syseledobsis dam. This relieved the anxiety of Vose and the Professor that they became at once animated and happy, particularly the Professor who felt somewhat limited in time, having an engagement to deliver a lecture on natural history toward the close of the month.

Thursday morning was bright and warm. Soon after breaking camp we reached the dam. We found Mr. Ball here, one of the assistant fish commissioners, who has admirably arranged breeding houses and, being an enthusiast in his work, is very successful. He also has care of the house owned by the "Dobsis Club," which club is composed of several prominent gentlemen of Massachusetts, who visit here regularly. Their catch of land locked salmon in May was fully up to the average for several years, which is large. We passed the morning here, visiting the hatching works, and getting much useful information from Mr. Ball. He and his wife remain here the year round, twenty miles from any settlement, their mode of locomotion being canoes in summer and snowshoes in winter. We left the dam, accompanied by them, about 3 o'clock, and started around Big Island and up the lake to our camping spot selected for us while at the dam. We met here two gentlemen from Boston, returning from a cruise in Chain lakes, reporting excellent success. Reaching the head of Big Island, we bade adieu to Mr. Ball and wife. Following their instructions, we trolled for salmon in both canoes, and caught several beauties, some weighing five pounds.

We reached our camping spot about dusk, and found it a dry sandy beach. After supper we prepared birch bark torches, and fishing the canoes together started around the shore of the lake to spear any luckless fish we should see. Vose made a striking tableau as he stood motionless in the bow with the spear poised aloft, the lurid light of the torches casting a brilliant halo about him, showing him in bold relief against the surrounding darkness. Suddenly he made a vigorous thrust, and in a second landed a huge sucker. So we fished for an hour, catching nothing but those big, listless fellows who gave up the ghost with a squeak like a guinea pig.

Friday morning was rare and beautiful, even in this, our best season of the year in Maine, and the glorious prospect before us of water and wilderness was sufficient to repay us for our journey thither. After an early breakfast, Vose and Henry went up the lake to try the salmon, while the Professor and "Brick Top" took the high ridge behind us. In two hours we were assembled about the camp fire comparing notes, with the following results: Five land-locked salmon, averaging three pounds, two salmon trout, weighing respectively one pound and one pound and a half (these last named are the handsomest fish that swims); seven partridges, one white headed eagle, shot by the Professor on the wing, and one red headed woodpecker. While the Professor was busily employed with knife and scissors preserving the eagle and woodpecker, we had camp broken and were in readiness to start.

Pushing out into the lake, we had a beautiful scene presented to us—six miles of perfectly calm water stretching away to the blue hills in the north, with a width of two miles or more, its shores accurately portrayed in its blue depths. We had no hesitancy in declaring this the lake of lakes in Maine. Its Indian title, Syseledobsis, is most significant, meaning "a lake with big rocks in it." The water is clear as crystal, and to a depth of forty feet we clearly discern great shelving rocks; so many places they would seem to rise abruptly before us, with little or no water over them, when in truth they were many feet below us. The lake was unusually high, and our catch of fish was limited in consequence.

We reached the head of the lake and our first carry after a delightful sail, and getting canoes and luggage out, started over a good road to the dam, about a mile distant. We had everything over in three hours, and finding sufficient water at the dam to float our canoe into the lake above, we settled on camping there for the night and fishing the stream. While supper was in progress, Vose caught trout enough to last us several days, some of two pounds.

Saturday morning found us abroad early, and in readiness for the Passadumkeag range of hills beyond us. The maps erroneously give Syseledobsis as one lake, about twenty miles long, while in fact it is separated by a stream narrow and rocky, and navigable only from the dam to the lake above, called Crooked on the maps, which is about as large as Syseledobsis. We pushed across this lake to Porter's Landing, and made preparations to pass the day and night. Vose and "Brick Top" climbed the high ridge above us, the watershed between St. Croix and Penobscot waters, and proceeded to Mr. Porter's camp, receiving a hearty welcome from this gentleman, who, reared in luxury, prefers the solitude of the woods. Securing his hound, they went out on the ridge, running parallel with the lake for two miles, and letting the dog loose, returned to our camp by the shore. The Professor readily left his specimens and arsenic, and accompanied "Brick Top" in his canoe to a station down the lake favorable for the entrance of the deer, while the other canoe was placed at an equally favorable point above. We had been in waiting scarcely half an hour, when we heard the baying of the hound, gradually becoming more distinct, and apparently in a direct line with the point covered by the Professor and "Brick Top." Before we got our guns in readiness a noble buck was in full sight of us. Pausing only a second to sniff the air about him he plunged into the lake. We waited patiently for him to swim by the point, but he must have discovered our camp fire, for he turned suddenly about and swam toward the shore he had left. The canoe containing the Professor shot by the point like a flash, and while it was in rapid motion he took quick aim and fired, killing the buck in his tracks just as another spring would have taken him into the woods again. The hound appeared at this instant, and received our praises in dignity and silence. Reserving only such portions of the buck as we could use in a short time, we gave the rest of the noble animal to Mr. Porter, and retired to our bed of boughs to enact the chase in dreams.

We were awakened Sunday morning by the rain beating upon our canvas roof. Getting breakfast with the rain dripping down our necks and off the end of our noses into the frying pan, was one of the slight discomforts of our trip. But as we were all volunteers, we made the best of it with good grace.

Mr. Porter soon appeared with his team to convey our canoes and belongings across the three miles between us and the Passadumkeag River. After many breakdowns and several trips, we got everything in sight of the river about 5 o'clock, and were all tired and wet after our hard work. The rain ceased shortly after we got our traps into the woods, and we quickly had a rousing spruce log fire, and dried boughs enough to give us a comfortable bed for the night, which was duly appreciated by us all. We decided to remain at this point for a day or two, and as the river was unusually high we argued that the trout holes below would be flowed out, and our best fishing would be above us. The result proved our wisdom, as we caught during Monday nearly two hundred handsome fellows, some of three pounds. During Tuesday we remained about the camp, fishing a little, sleeping a good deal, and at work loading shells for duck shooting below. The numerous creeks and streams along the stream are an excellent feeding ground for ducks, large numbers and several varieties frequenting these places during the season. It rained heavily again during the night, but Vose's waterproof tent sustained the reputation of the maker and we passed the night as dry and comfortable as if we had been at home. During the evening the Professor was engaged in packing the specimens preserved by him during the trip. They contained arsenic enough to poison the entire population of the township which we were in.

Wednesday was cloudy and cold, with strong indications of more rain. We broke up our comfortable home in the woods and commenced our descent of the river, whose Indian name, Passadumkeag, meaning "Meadow River," is most appropriate, and if they could have extended its title to include "very narrow and extremely crooked," it would have been described completely. There is quite a current for its entire length, and its deep, dark water is full of excellent breeding and feeding ground for the trout. We reached the Taylor brooks about noon, and caught a few nice trout while the rain fell on us in torrents. The mouths of these brooks are reputed places among a few anglers earlier in the season, and were fished by distinguished parties, containing Judge Clifford, of the Supreme Court, and Senator Hamlin, of Maine, during May and June, with splendid success. We passed several parties gathering cranberries, which grow on the meadows in vast quantities. The river in many places is very picturesque, and for a mile we follow its crooked course far into the open meadow, turn suddenly about and enter the woods to continue for two or three miles, its width in no place exceeding one hundred feet. These changes from meadow to forest are most agreeable, and break the monotony of the trip. The flora of this region, although somewhat meager, was learnedly analyzed by the Professor as we glided quietly along. We made camp early, and after a royal supper of broiled duck, partridge and trout, our wet clothes were forgotten, and we contentedly sought the shelter of our canvas home.

Thursday morning was bright and beautiful and, after the cold rain of the previous days, was thoroughly enjoyed by us all. We started early, having a day of hard work in prospect. We passed the mouth of Nicatous stream, which runs ten miles from the lake of the same name, and reached Grand Falls about noon. These falls pitch suddenly down the river to the low land below, nearly three hundred feet. The water was high enough to enable us, with care, to drop down to the dam, but it proved a rough place for the canoes. The Professor and "Brick Top" were obliged to get out after a few rods and wade their canoe through the boisterous current. There is a good carry road on both sides of the falls, and we should have got down more comfortably had we carried the whole distance, about a mile. Taking out the canoes at the dam, a short carry took us to the calm water below, and getting a hasty dinner we were in readiness to leave for our intended camp on the shore of Saponic Lake, eight miles away. We had seen but few ducks above the falls, but made preparations to encounter them on our way down, as we heard a party who left a few moments ahead of us firing repeatedly. Judging from their excessive shooting, we concluded we should get nothing but cripples. We had gone but a few rods, when a handsome wood drake flew up from the grass ahead of us, which the Professor tumbled into the stream with a well-directed shot. In about five miles of our journey from the falls we shot five wood drakes, four black ducks and two blue winged teal.

To any one in a hurry a trip down this river would prove most exasperating, as its tortuous course continues for its entire length, while the distance must have been computed in air line, as in traversing the eight miles to Saponic we were unanimous in the opinion that we had traveled twelve. The river makes one more abrupt turn to the right, and opens immediately into a lake of which we had no previous warning. It is nearly circular in shape, and about a mile in diameter, abounding in pickerel and white perch, the trout being exclusively confined to the water above the falls. The settlement of Burlington, on its north shore, gives us our first intimation of returning to civilization. We found the party encamped near the spot we intended to occupy, and while we were getting camp in readiness the Professor was interviewed by them, and his conscious smile of superiority must have been blighting when, in comparing notes of the shooting, they brought forth two black ducks, having expended powder enough, as they admitted, to supply a company of infantry, while he silently pointed to our eleven with an air of pride he could not conceal.

After the excellent supper prepared for us had been fully discussed, the Professor was soon learnedly discoursing upon the different methods of taking fish, deer and other game, with our united parties as auditors. We listened with admiration to his excellent ideas, clothed in graceful language, until, in his entire absorption in relating his experiences, he got into repetition, and as he commenced to relate, for the fortieth time, his experience at Bar Harbor during a gale of wind "most terrible, gentlemen, yes sir," we of our party quietly withdrew to our bed, leaving the other party spellbound at his thrilling narrative of events that only occurred in his imagination.

Friday morning found us early astir, as this was to be our last day out, and although we were but fifteen miles from the town of Passadumkeag, where we were to take the cars so our several homes, we had before us several rapids and one or two carries, for which we must make due allowance of time. We were across the lake at an early hour, and encountered at the outlet the first of the several rapids in our path. This rapid was short, like them all, but very rocky, and it required considerable skill to keep our frail craft clear of the white-crested rocks that stood up all around us, by which we rushed with railroad speed, passing one other safely we reached the town of Lowell. Carrying over the dam, a few rods below, we had canoes afloat again and in readiness to start about noon. Before leaving we called on Mr. J. Darling, whose home is here. We found him busily engaged in building a canvas canoe, several of which he had in his workshop completed. He has acquired a reputation as a builder of canvas and birch canoes only equaled by his reputation as a successful hunter and guide. No better man could be engaged for a hunting and fishing trip anywhere in Maine, as he is familiar with all the lakes and rivers.

Taking our places in the canoes for the last time, we reluctantly started for our destination, ten miles below. Passing in safety many rapids in quick succession, we arrived at Passadumkeag at the junction of the river with the Penobscot, in good season for the train which was to break up our party.

We had enjoyed the best of health for the entire trip, and felt our bodies and minds renewed by our rough experience, storing up the pleasantest of reminiscences, to be recalled during the long winter nights before us.

A Republican State Convention

WILL BE HELD IN

GRANITE HALL, AUGUSTA,

Wednesday, June 23, 1880

At 11 o'clock A. M.,

for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor to be supported at the September election, and two candidates for Electors of President and Vice President of the United States and to transact any other business that may properly come before the Convention.

The basis of representation will be as follows: Each city, town and plantation will be entitled to one delegate and for every seventy five votes cast for the Republican candidate for Governor in 1879 an additional delegate and a fraction of forty votes in excess of seventy five will be accorded a delegate.

The State Committee will be in session in the ante room of the Hall at 9 o'clock, on the morning of the Convention, to receive the credentials of delegates.

For the first time in the history of Maine the attempt was made in 1879 to deprive the people of their right to choose their own officers and to corruptly continue in power those whom the people had rejected. The authors abettors and accomplices in this crime against free government are now seeking to come before the people under some new party name—availing themselves of an alias the common resort of those who seek to escape the responsibility and punishment of their crimes.

Against these men, under whatever name they may appear all those citizens who condemn the nefarious plot to destroy the rights of suffrage, are invited to unite without regard to past party affiliations to preserve honest Government for the honest people of Maine.

By order of the Republican State Committee

C. A. BOUTELLE,
FRED N DOW, } Sub-
GEORGE C. WING, } Committee
J O SMITH, Secretary.

DECORATION DAY

To-day and Monday the people of this country will engage in the tender memorial service of decorating with flowers the resting places of the honored and sacred dead. We say "the people," for while the actual service may be performed with reverential devotion by the battle-scarred heroes who survived the shock, and were enabled under a kind Providence to return to the pursuits of peace, the whole people will join in spirit and by their presence in observing a day which is marked "sacred" in the calendar of our memories.

Nature herself touching as if by magic wand the sources of her fairest and most heavenly manifestations of life, tripping with elastic steps over the violet covered hills, brings the first sweet offering of her resurrection awakening to deck the graves of sleeping braves. It is a day of holy tears and of joy unutterable—tears for those who were bereaved, from whose homes went out so suddenly the light of life—the father who left his prattling babe in its mother's arms, never to return,—joy that the blood of these heroes did not wet Southern soil in vain, that we have a country, rescued from the grasp of the traitor by their costly sacrifice—rescued from the oblivion that has swallowed up the republics of old.

This day the quickened memory of the patriot fills and thrills every fibre of the soul. Can the veteran, as he dons again the coat of blue forget his comrades who shared with him the weary march, the painful suspense of camp life, the dreary experience in rebel prisons, who finally went down amid the smoke of battle at Donelson, at Shiloah, at Five Oaks, at Chattanooga, in the Wilderness, among the stars at Lookout Mountain, or on any of the hundred battle fields of the rebellious South? Or can the heroes of the sea forget through the mists of years, men who like Farragut, chained to the shrouds, fought out the conflict at Fisher, and Mobile and New Orleans? Or the men of the grand old Potomac army, who were able to wrest glorious victory from what often seemed disastrous defeat—can we forget these? These scenes, and the heroes participating in them, come back on these Memorial Days to fan the flames of patriotism. Each dead soldier is a star of rejoicing in the coronet of this nation. Summer with its soft beauty, autumn with its ripening fruitage, winter with its glow of home cheer, and spring with its new life, may come and go the number of the true and tried may grow less and less, but throughout the ages, as the day comes round, men and women will deck these grassy mounds with the fairest flowers of spring-time. These heroes shall live in the glowing stars of victory. Whether buried in Southern soil, in the trenches of the bloody field, or resting in the native soil of the homes they loved so well, whether marble shaft pointing heavenward bears the truthful inscription of their heroism, or the plain slab is marked "unknown" not one of them shall be lost to memory, and the nation shall guard from foes within and foes without the priceless legacy they have left.

GATHERING AT CHICAGO FOR THE GREAT CONVENTION.

The preliminary canvass of the great Republican National Convention at Chicago has fairly begun all the leading candidates being represented by able and efficient workers. Hon Eugene Hale of this State, and William E Chandler, of New Hampshire, are on the ground in charge of Mr Blaine's interests, aided by the strong following of the Maine Senator in the city, which acknowledges Charles B Farwell as its leader. Ex Congressman Stephen A Hurlbut is also there. Secretary Sherman is represented by ex Governor Dennison, General Warner M Bateman, of Ohio, Thomas M Nichol, Secretary of the National Hard Money League and some others. Grant's right bowers, Gen Logan, Don Cameron S M Jones, Levi P Morton and hosts of others are upholding the standard of the third term.

It is evident that the Blaine men are thoroughly in earnest in the Illinois case. This may be the decisive battle of the Convention and the Blaine men are preparing to do their best in it. The contest of the ten disfranchised districts will be supported by the full strength of Senator Blaine and perhaps by the combined opposition, and it will be organized and directed throughout by the political ability at the command of General Grant's opponents.

Eugene Hale says there will be of course an organized and determined effort to break up the unit rule. There is reason for believing that the Sherman men are ready to join in the movement. The Sherman delegates propose to have their own candidate for chairman whom Blaine men could vote for if they chose and propose to act independently. Estimating the Sherman vote at 106 and the Blaine vote at 277, an alliance of the two without outside help would make 383 votes—379 being a majority—but both these estimates include votes which cannot be cast if the unit rule is enforced and the question whether the unit rule will be observed in voting upon itself will depend much upon the temporary chairman of the Convention. It seems to be settled that the third term candidate for temporary chairman will be ex Postmaster General Creswell and for permanent chairman ex Secretary Boutwell both ones of President Grant's Cabinet.

It is asserted in Washington very confidently by Mr Blaine's trusted friends that when the National Republican Committee meets in Chicago on Monday next Senator Cameron will be deposed from the chairmanship by the Blaine members, who are in a majority. This will be done in order to give Mr Blaine the temporary organization of the convention. A lively time is expected at this meeting of the National Committee.

It is whispered that Senator Cameron meditates a startling change in the programme. The disclosure of the purpose to enforce the unit rule at the outset and by its aid to capture the temporary organization has aroused a feeling which alarms him. He is utterly without experience as a parliamentarian or even as a public speaker, and he fears that he cannot control the Convention in the turbulent scenes which such an attempt at bulldozing would surely provoke. Casting about therefore, for somebody to put in his place, there is a rumor that he has hit upon George C Gorham, of California. Gorham has experience, skill boundless audacity and unmeasured recklessness.

The disfranchised delegates from Illinois are holding consultations. Gen Hurlbut has prepared a memorial setting forth the case of the contestants which they will probably sign, and which will then be ready for submission to the Convention. It is even proposed by some of the Blaine following to contest the seats of the four delegates at large from Illinois, on the ground that fifty-six delegates from Cook County who e seats were not contested, were not permitted to vote upon the report of the Committee of Credentials, and the Grant majority was otherwise fraudulently made up through the Cook County delegation. This suggestion has been regarded favorably by the leaders upon the Blaine side, but it is not likely to be finally adopted. It will be opposed by some of the disfranchised delegates themselves, on the ground that they would inevitably be beaten, and that a defeat would weaken them in the Senatorial Districts, where they have an impregnable case.

General Kueffner says that he was surprised at the bitterness he found among the Republicans of his neighborhood on returning from the Convention. He was prepared to find them angry, but was not prepared for the threats that were heard on all sides to vote the Democratic ticket if the Republican party was to be run in the Logan fashion much longer.

A letter received from Alabama shows that the Chicago Convention at the outset will be compelled to meet the question as to the right of a State Convention to disregard the fact that districts have appointed and instructed delegates and to appoint delegates in their places. The Alabama Convention, which was for Grant, expelled two anti-Grant delegates, and these delegates were instructed by their districts and propose to go to Chicago to present their cases. This will raise the whole question of instructed district delegates, and the further question of turning out district delegates chosen by the consent and approval of the State Convention. Alabama will be the first State to call so that this question can be raised at the beginning.

The Commercial writhes and squirms at the exposure made by Mr. Brett of its wanton untruthfulness. It was exceedingly small game to shoot at, but Brett's shot brought the fellow down.

COMPULSORY PILOTAGE.

The people of Maine engaged in shipping will notice with pleasure from our Washington despatches, that the Congressional Committee will report favorably on the bill repealing compulsory pilotage through Hell Gate, N. Y. The law was peculiarly obnoxious and onerous to Maine ship owners who were compelled under its provisions to engage pilots at large expense who were no more competent to perform the duty than the commanders of their own vessels. At the last session of the Maine Legislature a resolution was adopted instructing our members of Congress to use their influence to have this unjust law repealed. We trust that Congress will confirm the action of the committee.

DEFENDING THE STEAL.

[From the Portland Press.]

The Democrats of Portland have justified the worst things said of their party by its bitterest opponents. Called upon to choose, they have preferred Charles Chase to Bion Bradbury. They have put themselves on record as defending the attempts to count out an honestly elected Legislature and to defeat by most dishonest means the popular will as expressed by the largest vote ever cast at the polls. Their action is not a surprise. When they entered into the corrupt coalition with the Greenbackers last year they entangled themselves in a net from which they find it impossible to escape. Those sagacious Democrats who foresaw the evils from the unholy alliance and refused to take part in it have now reason to congratulate themselves on the wise course they pursued. Recruits are coming to them this year. If they had cause to protest in the last canvass they have more cause now. Then the Democratic party in Maine abandoned the doctrine of hard-money, one of its two cardinal principles, in order to get control of the State government. Now the Democratic party in the country has abandoned the State Rights doctrine in order to get control of the national government. No wonder that staunch old Democrats whose lives have been devoted to these principles so lightly cast aside by their party organizations think it time to step out of the ranks and cast their lot elsewhere. They are tired of making useless protests. They have learned to entertain a profound distrust of the leaders they have followed so long. And they will be found this year working with might and main against fusion and its unscrupulous supporters.

SENATOR BLAINE'S FRIENDS

[From the Boston Journal of Friday.]

Whether Senator Blaine is nominated at Chicago or not, he will have renewed reason to feel that he is appreciated and admired in Maine and by the people who have known him best for the past twenty-five years. The train which left here last night was filled with his own people. There were many politicians but it is due to them and to the Senator to say that they are of the kind who stand by a man, whatever may be his fortune. But aside from the active politicians there was a large number of prominent business men in the Maine party—such men as Charles M Bailey of Winthrop, ex Mayor Wescott of Portland and Henry Whiting of Ellsworth, who go to Chicago not because they expect anything or will ask anything of Senator Blaine politically. They go because they admire the man and believe in him, and they would go just the same if they were sure that Senator Blaine was to be defeated. The support of such men, their confidence and esteem and that devotion to his interests which lead them to leave their business in the busiest season of the year, are the best answers which can be given to the calumnies which have been circulated against the character of the Maine Senator. These men have known him for many years, and such men as Charles M Bailey, a leader in the Society of Friends and Rev A R Crane one of the most prominent Baptist clergymen in Maine, are not men who would go to Chicago to support any man in whom they did not repose the utmost confidence and for whom they did not entain the highest regard. To most men the possession of such friends would be more valuable than the Presidency.

POLITICAL

The Republican County Convention for Waldo is called for June 4th, in Belfast.

We notice among the delegates from this and neighboring towns to the Labor Conventions one of the most notorious loafers to be found in Franklin county. Consistency—but we will say no more.—Farmington Chronicle.

The talk about opposition to Blaine by men who prefer Grant in Maine is the merest humbug. The only anti Blaine Republicans there are of the independent order, and have just as little sympathy with the ex President, and the Traveller probably knows this.—Boston Herald.

Ex Gov Brown, of Georgia the successor of Senator Gordon looks like a clergyman. He will not occupy the seat vacated by Senator Gordon, having exchanged with Senator Groome, in order to be beside his colleague, Senator Hill. Senator Gordon and Senator Hill have not been friends, and have conspicuously antagonized each other on several important occasions. The exchange of seats probably indicates that the new Senator does not inherit the prejudices of his predecessor.

The Cincinnati Gazette says: A distinguished editor of this city, known by his independent views in politics, was recently asked by an eminent literary man in which of the candidates he was on the fence, at the present time. The former replied that he was. A third person inquired of the "distinguished editor" what he "would do in case the fence came down and there happened to be a bull in the adjoining pasture and a bulldog in the other." The instant reply was, "I'd set the dog on the bull."

Secretary Sherman has bought another three million dollars worth of United States bonds. He could not make a better use of the surplus revenue, with which the national prosperity is filling the Treasury. In this way the burden of debt and of taxation is diminished, and the money is put beyond the reach of Democratic fingers. If it lay in the vaults, they would soon find means of spending it. The Secretary is dissatisfied with the prices paid, however, and hereafter the regular weekly proposals will include the new four and-a-halfs and fours.

Senator Hamlin has gone to Chicago. He declined to go as a delegate, but he will be personally present as Mr. Blaine's special friend—fully authorized to speak for Mr. Blaine on any and every point that may arise.

Drouths in various parts of the country are becoming very injurious to the crops. In New Jersey the grass, grain and early vegetables have been seriously damaged, the strawberry crop is injured and the peas crop threatened. The drouth is serious in New York and Massachusetts. It is becoming quite dry in this State and great damage will be done the hay crop, unless copious rains come soon.

CHIEF VICTORIA DEFEATED.

At last Chief Victoria and his villainous band have been surprised, frightened and defeated. Thirty dead Indians are reported by the native scouts, while the soldiers claim that they killed about twice as many. Either number would indicate an unusual success, for Victoria's band is not large. The finding of Navajoes and Comanches among the dead proves that, as suspected, the band is composed of bad Indians from everywhere. The most hopeful indication of the fight is that the Indians were demoralized by their defeat. Heretofore their immunity from serious harm has caused these particular savages to consider themselves invincible—hence their boldness, but the defeat experienced will make them less dangerous in the future, even if the pursuing column fails to overtake and exterminate them.

NEWS AND MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

It is said that Bret Harte is more popular in England than Irving ever was.

The body of Frederick Emil Brumann who murdered his wife, Thursday, was found in East River, N Y, Wednesday night, his throat also cut from ear to ear.

The Chinese Consul at San Francisco says that Chinese immigration at that port has substantially ceased, while many Chinamen are going home.

Col McCalom of Hampton, Ga, was killed by Town Marshal McKneely, Wednesday P M in Atlanta, Ga. The two had just had a fight, and McKneely procured a shot gun and killed McCalum.

There is no depth of crime to which rum cannot debase a man. A drunken father has just beaten to death a crippled son who had been mute and bedridden from birth.

The Empress Eugenie, during her stay at Durban, was to occupy the same room in Government House which her son occupied a year ago, was to ride in the same carriage and eat from the same table that he did.

A wedding ceremony was performed in the ring of Welsh & Sands' Circus, while performing at Greenville Ohio, recently. The chief culprits were Miss Hatta Burgh, of Marion, Ohio, and Thos J Searles, clog dancer of the circus.

The death of the late H S Foote may serve as a warning to careless persons. The painful malady which put an end to his existence was caused by striking the top of his head, when suddenly rising, against the sharp point at the bottom of a chandelier under which he had been sitting.

One writer, advertising his bitters, says they are richer in bone-producing material than other bitters can be. There is no doubt about it. Let a man stick to the bitters in season and out of season, and he will come to be all bones in the course of time.

Thos Melia, a sailor now in prison at New Orleans charged with setting fire to a cargo of cotton on the ship Iron Cross last month Wednesday made a full confession to the British Consul implicating several persons including another sailor, a long shoreman and some tug boat men. The names have not been made public.

A man was struck down by paralysis in a Michigan saw mill. He fell across a log which was being sawed, and was carried with it slowly but surely to the saw. He was conscious but utterly helpless. The saw had cut half way through his arm when his awful predicament was discovered.

When a man has lost his pocket book or a gold collar button, the question asked him by nine people out of ten is "Where did you lose it?" And this is always a very soothing question to the loser because if he knew where he lost the article, it is reasonable to suppose that he would be looking in forty different places to find it.

In the Court of General Sessions, at Kingston S C Wednesday, a man named Ward was convicted of forgery. As soon as the verdict was announced Ward drew a pistol and fired twice at two men named Harper and Lane, the principal witnesses against him. Harper was unhurt but Lane was wounded in both hands. Ward was jailed.

Captain Howgate, the Arctic explorer has just given a quaint water party near Washington. He engaged a packet of the Chesapeake and Cumberland Canal, and with three horses attached he conveyed his guests through some of the most romantic scenery in the country. Striped awnings protected them from the glare, and a table full of good things helped to brighten the novel expedition to the Great Falls of the Potomac.

William Wilson, a butcher at Fort Macleod Mon, recently killed an ox whose stomach was found to contain five or six dollars worth of fine gold, mixed with sand. The crowns evidently a good prospector and doubtless found pay in the grass roots. The singular event created a decided stir at Fort Macleod, and a number of parties have stampeded in the hope that they may be able to find and jump the ox's claim before his heirs intermeddle.

Hayes says he would not accept a second term even if it were offered to him on a silver platter. Nobody would be foolish enough to offer it to a fraudulent President—with any expectation at least of getting the silver platter back again.—Lewiston Gazette.

The forgers of election returns offered Joe Smith at Augusta last winter, the Governorship of Maine on a Greenback platter, and came mighty near getting a term apiece in State prison.—Belfast Journal.

Speaking of the Blaine train, on its passage through Kennebunk, a correspondent of the Boston Traveller says "Many leading and influential Republicans are in the party, and it is safe to say that the delegation is the largest as well as the most distinctly representative of any that ever left the Dirigo State."

The circulation of Harper's Weekly in Maine has largely fallen off since its cowardly attacks on Blaine.

Although the Treasury vaults are overstocked with silver dollars, the Democrats in the House have refused an appropriation for storage. The Greenbackers who were in favor of the bogus dollar are in the condition of the fellow who drew a white elephant in the lottery—they don't know what to do with it. Launch it upon the country, and it would at once cheapen labor and send up the price of provisions, and that would hardly be in the interest of the poor man, whose cause these illogical philanthropists pretend to champion.

Monday, May 31st, will be Decoration Day, and being a legal holiday in this State, notes at any bank falling due upon that day, or the Sunday preceding it, are not required to be paid until June 1. This will also be the case this year with Fourth of July, which, falling on Sunday, Monday will be the legal holiday.

Colorado is receiving a marvellous accession to its population. It is said Denver receives over a thousand a day, who come in on the trains, but scatter all over the country in settling. It is believed 100,000 will be added to the population by the 1st of July. These people, however, come to work in the mines, or to prospect for gold or silver and speculate, rather than as permanent settlers, and to build up the country. The Denver and Rio Grand Railroad Company has advertised for 1,000 men to work on the road, at good wages, but cannot obtain them as fast as needed.

Judge Symonds has rendered a decision in favor of the petitioners in the cases of the counting-out county officers in Washington county. This will re-instate C. B. Rounds, whose charges so inflamed the Great Tabulators. The proof at the trial was clear and conclusive. Counsel for petitioners were E. B. Harvey and C. B. Rounds of Calais, and H. M. Heath of Augusta; for the respondents, A. McNichol of Calais, J. H. French of Eastport, E. K. Smart and Bernard Rogers, of Pembroke.

A GOOD DAY FOR PANTHERS.

Oregon is the scene of a panther-slaying episode, which, as related by the Butler Creek Enterprise, is enough to make Fiction blush over the audacity of Truth. A settler living near Scott's Mills set out to haul some cedar timber, being accompanied by children, a little rat terrier, a Newfoundland dog and a large bore rifle. After leaving the main road a panther crossed the path, and was quickly treed by the dogs. Obtaining a rest aim he shot the beast dead. When he returned to the wagon the children pointed out another panther behind them in the path by which they had come. This one was treed and shot in the same manner, but sprang from the tree and ran a hundred yards before it fell. Proceeding some distance further the little dog treed a panther two-thirds grown. Number three was shot dead.

Before he had time to reload he heard the big dog barking at something about 200 yards off. On going there he saw the biggest panther he had ever seen—a very large female. She was growling and snapping her teeth at the dogs. It was difficult to get a good shot but on firing she came down and ran off, the dogs following. She was next found on a stump about twenty five feet from the ground. He shot again but no vital spot was struck. On looking for a bullet he found that he had only half a bullet left with which to make a successful shot or lose his game. His patching was all gone as well, so he tore off part of the lining of his coat taking careful aim he fired. The beast tumbled to the ground and was seized by the dogs. She had succeeded in tearing the scalp nearly off the big dog, when death put an end to the struggle. Number four measured nine feet.

FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS--Second Session.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, May 28.

The bill granting pensions to certain soldiers of the Mexican and other wars, was placed on the calendar.

Mr. Blaine presented the views of the minority of the committee to inquire into alleged frauds in the elections. It is upon the question of the denial of the suffrage to certain citizens of Rhode Island. Tabled and printed.

A resolution to open negotiations with France, Spain, Austria and Italy to remove restrictions on the importations of tobacco, was placed on the calendar.

A resolution calling for all correspondence relating to overdue claims of the United States against the New York Central Railroad for tax on scrip dividend was submitted. Mr. Edmunds objected, and the resolution lies over.

The joint-resolution for the settlement of accounts between the United States and Florida was taken up and agreed to.

The bill to authorize bonds of manufacturers of tobacco, snuff and cigars, exporting the same, to be cancelled at the port of clearance, was passed.

House.

A resolution was adopted for an adjournment from to-day until Monday.

The Senate bill authorizing the settlement of the accounts of Col. Thomas Worthington, of Ohio, was passed.

The House went into a Committee of the Whole on the Sundry Appropriation bill.

The appropriation for the survey of the public lands was increased to $400,000.

Mr. Bragg (Dem.) moved to strike out the paragraph appropriating $10,000 for the purchase of the records of the Post Office Department of the late Confederate government.

The amendment by Mr. Blount (Dem.) appropriating $650,000 for payment of marshals and their general deputies, except for service of the latter at elections was agreed to. Notices to strike out the exception and the word "general" were rejected.

The amendment to strike out only the appropriation for Curtain and Youcum, was carried amid great confusion. The various amendments were then reported to the House and the matter went over.

The amendment increasing the appropriation for a geological survey was rejected and the committee rose, and the House concurred in the Senate amendments to the pension deficiency bill. The House again went into committee.

Adjourned.

THE WHITTAKER CASE.

Closed as Regards Testimony—Adjournment of the Court.

WEST POINT, May 28. In the Whittaker case to-day, evidence was submitted showing the unreliability of Whittaker's statements. Whittaker's counsel had no testimony to offer and the case was closed as regards further testimony.

Recorder Sears summed up the Whittaker case at great length, in the course of which he ridiculed the idea of conspiracy among the cadets to outrage the negro. He commented severely upon the remarks made about the affair. He said that Martin J. Townsend was violently prejudiced; that all the testimony went to show that Whittaker was the author of his own assault. He considered Whittaker's motive to be that he could not graduate, and being rejected by the girl he thought to win her affection by showing himself to be persecuted. He concocted this scheme, believing he would be sent to the hospital, and failing to pass would go out into the world with a host of friends to receive him as a martyr. The Recorder closed by demanding that Whittaker be tried by court martial.

Lieut. Knight said there was nothing in the evidence showing Whittaker's story to be untrue. He regretted the isolated position of his client, and said his friend had made it more so by taking up the time of the court with nothing in general. He ridiculed the idea that Whittaker wanted sympathy. No evidence had reflected upon Whittaker from boyhood up to the time he was found bound. He demanded a court of inquiry which is more severe than a court martial. He showed sarcastically how experts in writing had contradicted themselves, and claimed the note of warning was a forgery of Whittaker's writing, and the paper stolen from Whittaker's room with the object of fastening suspicion on him.

The court adjourned sin die. To-night the court will give its opinion to Gen. Schofield who will forward it to the War Department.

Another small dog standing by the door was nearly frightened to death when his brother shot past him, and he made for the post-office howling the worst kind. ANOTHER CASE OF ARSON.

Yesterday morning Constable J. D. Hinds, of South Orrington, arrived in this city with a first class specimen of a tramp, whom he arrested on a charge of burning the buildings of Capt. Elisha W. Snare, of that place. These buildings were burned at about one o'clock Thursday morning as was stated in the WHIG of that date The fire started in the barn chamber and made such rapid headway that the occupants of the house barely had time to make their escape.

It was evident that the fire was set and suspicion fell upon a tramp seen about the neighborhood that evening by several ladies. Shortly after the fire was discovered a German lady living near by heard some one in her shed and went out with a lamp, thinking it was her husband, but when she reached the shed she saw this tramp standing there. Being a resolute woman she seized a hammer and started for the tramp, when he said, "Don't strike, I was only after a pail to go to the fire," and then made tracks. These actions led the people of the town to suppose that the tramp set the fire, with the intentions of plundering the houses in the vicinity, while the occupants were endeavoring to save the burning buildings.

As soon as Constable Hinds heard of the matter he began to investigate it and arrested the tramp Thursday evening. He questioned him and learned that he was the same man whom the German lady frightened away, and afterwards took him to the ladies who saw the man prowling around Wednesday night, and they identified him as the same party. The tramp gave the name of Henry Smith and said he belonged in Portland. Constable Hinds brought him to this city and will probably have him arraigned to-day.

The property was valued at $3500 and was insured for $1500.

THE BELFAST EXCURSION.

A Pleasant Trip only Rather too Much of it.

At about eight o'clock Thursday morning a large and pleasant party left this city on the steamer Sea Flower for a trip down river. A portion of the party consisted of ladies and gentlemen who were on their way to Northport to look after their cottages, while the remainder were bound for Belfast, where the Boston Museum Company played that night, under the management of the Buskin Club.

The day was delightful for although the sun was intensely hot the delicious breeze on the water made the trip along the picturesque shores of the old Penobscot one of much enjoyment. Unfortunately this was the trial trip of the steamer and she went very slow, owing as the officers said, to the machinery being new and not exactly in working order, so that it was two o'clock before the excursionists reached the wharf at Belfast. The hours did not seem so very long, however, a portion of the time being occupied by Andrews' Orchestra, which discoursed some very fine music.

On arriving at Belfast the Buskin Club were met by Mr. Fred Pote, who had made all the arrangements for the entertainment in the evening, and the company proceeded at once to the New England House, where, after a refreshing bath, they were fully prepared to appreciate the excellent dinner placed before them by mine host N. W. Holmes. The remainder of the afternoon was passed very quietly on account of the extreme heat, the mercury registering nine-two in the shade—one of the hottest days ever known there at this season of the year. Some of the excursionists who were unacquainted in this beautiful little city, availed themselves of this opportunity to drive about the place, the streets of which are lined with handsome residences surrounded by well kept grounds, and shaded by stately elms and beautiful maples.

In the evening a very large and fashionable audience assembled in Hayford's Opera House to greet the Boston Museum Company. The applause was very enthusiastic, Miss Carle receiving an encore at the close of her song. Miss Clarke and Miss Carle were both presented with handsome floral tributes. The stage was prettily set with Mr. Lovell's scenery taken from this city. At the close of the entertainment the Museum Company returned to the hotel where they passed the night, and the excursionists prepared for the return trip.

The steamer left the wharf at about half-past twelve o'clock, and pointed towards home. It was a beautiful night, their being hardly a breath of air stirring while the moon shed its kindly light which was reflected on the water and formed a magnificent picture. A little later in the night another picture was presented in the cabin, that was as ludicrous as the other was sublime. A cool breeze having sprung up the passengers were glad to go below and try to catch a little rest. Some were fortunate enough to secure sufficient space in which to stretch themselves upon the soft side of the floor, while others balanced themselves upon a camp-stool, or folded themselves up like a jack-knife in some secluded corner.

As the engine continued to work badly it was decided to land at Mill Creek and take the cars home, so the boat ran up to the wharf, and early risers in this quiet place were surprised to see a very sleepy looking crowd slowly making their way to the depot. While waiting here some members of the party refreshed their drooping spirits by a bath in the waters of a pretty little cascade a few rods distant. The train finally came along and the party flocked into the cars much to the surprise of Conductor Putman, who never expected to see so many passengers there. It was seven o'clock when the familiar streets of Bangor were reached and the only comment made was, "A pleasant trip, only rather too much of it."

A very pretty miniature park and flower garden has been laid out on the depot grounds at Leeds Junction.

SAVED HER LIFE. Messrs. P. W. HUBBARD & CO.: My wife was a great sufferer from Sick Headache, Dizziness, and Constipation, for a long time. She tried many remedies, but found nothing that would give her relief until she tried the People's Favorite Tonic Bitters. She was restored to health by their use. I am confident they saved her life.—DEA. F. See Advertisement. may27

THE MAGNITUDE OF MAN. Take a globe 7 feet in diameter, with a surface smooth as glass, let this represent the world, then place thereon one grain of sand 1-20 of one inch in thickness, and this grain of sand will bear the same proportion to the aforesaid globe, that the highest mountain in the world bears to the earth's surface. This statement is made on good authority. Now we propose to do a little more figuring in order to show what an enormous creature man must be, as seen striding up and down the earth. One of the loftiest peaks of the Andes rises to a hight of about 25,000 feet. Place a box of Stoddard's Harness Soap on its summit, and let us suppose it possible for a sufficient number of men to stand one upon another's head, so that the uppermost man shall be at an elevation that would enable him to stretch forth his hand and secure the prize, we can afford to be liberal, and will allow 6 feet to a man, 25,000 divided by 6 gives 4,166. Shades of Lilliput! more than 4000 of such men are required to attain an altitude of 1-20 of one inch. Where is the microscope with the aid of which one of these little specs of humanity could be discovered? Some of these atoms are very influential and are known as great men. Others aspire to eminence, but their ladder often proves too short. Each is supposed to be engaged in something that concerns himself, but here and there a person is found attending to matters that are exclusively his neighbor's. All, without a single exception, from King to Peasant, put in their time for their "board and clothes," and it is of no kind of use to strike for higher wages. The rate is fixed and is unchangeable. It is very fortunate for the manufacturers of that famous leather dressing, "Stoddard's Harness Soap," that millions of these people keep horses, use harnesses, boots and shoes; and it is equally fortunate for the people that such a first class preparation can be procured from all respectable dealers throughout the land. may22 d7t&w1w

CURED HER DYSPEPSIA. A lady says: "I saw your advertisement of the People's Favorite Tonic Bitters and told my husband that I was going to try it for Dyspepsia. He said it was a humbug like many others, but I persuaded him to get a bottle, for trial. Its effect was wonderful; I never used anything that helped me so much. Unlike many other bitters its benefit is lasting. My husband now cannot say enough in its praise." See advertisement. may27

To the Honorable Judge of Probate, for the County of Penobscot:

The undersigned, administrator of the estate of Margaret T. Sanford, late of Bradford, in said County, deceased, respectfully represents that the goods and chattels, rights and credits of said deceased are not sufficient to pay her just debts and charges of administration by the sum of, about eight hundred dollars.

Wherefore your petitioner prays your Honor to grant him power to sell by license at public or private sale, and convey the whole of the following described real estate of the deceased, as the residue would be greatly depreciated by a sale of any portion, viz: All the right, title and interest of the deceased in and to about fifty acres of land in said Bradford, being south half of lot No. 36, Strong's survey of Bradford, subject to the improvements thereon, to satisfy said debts, expenses of sale, and charges of administration.

Said real estate is the same described in a deed recorded in the Registry of Deeds of said County, Vol. 286, page 291.

LIFT THEM UP.

BY REBECCA R. PIERCE.

For the fallen have pity,
By Life's drear wayside,
Nor too closely draw round thee
Thy garment of pride.
Let not in well-doing,
Thy heart ever tire,
But, with pitiful hand,
Lift them up from the mire.

How blest His example
The Saviour of men!
Who, in pity, condemned not
The frail Magdalen.
She was once as thy self
As pure and as fair,
But alas, the dark trail
Of the serpent was there!

Thou mayst not have known
A temptation so great,
Which around her was thrown
Like the network of Fate.
To the fraitand the erring,
Christ opened the door,
When He said to the woman,
"Go, sin thou no more"

For the fallen have pity;
Do not in thy pride,
Like Levite and priest,
Turn coldly aside.
Lift them up from the darkness
Of sin and despair;
Lift them up from the depths
To a life that is fair.

Orrington, May, 1880.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

Timber is being hauled on the meeting house hill in Franklin for a new church, a Free Union Church, to be built the coming season.

The quarterly session of East Maine Christian Conference will be held with the Christian church in Parkman, commencing the 18th of June. Baptismal services will occur during the session.

The South Aroostook Baptist Quarterly Meeting will hold its next session with the church in Patten, beginning Saturday, June 5th, at 2 o'clock, P. M.

Six persons were baptized last Sunday morning by Rev. H. Record, pastor of the Baptist church, Hamden, and in the evening these, with four others, received the hand of fellowship.

The next session of the Piscataquis Baptist Quarterly Meeting will be held with the church at South Dover, commencing Friday; June eleventh, at 2 P. M.

The Piscataquis Conference will meet with the church in Dexter, Tuesday and Wednesday, the 8th and 9th of June, at 10 o'clock A. M. First preacher, Rev. G. W. Jones; second, Rev. C. L. Nichols.

The Methodists have completed the survey of their new camp meeting grounds in Foxcroft, and work will soon be begun on them to get ready for the fall meeting, which will probably begin the last week in August.

The four churches in the villages of Dover and Foxcroft, unite their Sabbath schools once in three months, in a union temperance concert, and the 4th one was held last Sabbath at the Congregational churches in Foxcroft. The concerts are very interesting and well attended.

The ladies of the Methodist church and society of Vassalboro have raised by subscription money enough to purchase a thousand pound bell. The bell was placed in position this week, and will ring for the first time at 6 o'clock Sabbath morning, in honor of Robert Raikes.

The present associational year which began in September '79, has been marked by an unusual number of changes and prospective changes in the Baptist ministry of Hancock county: Stetson ordained at Trenton, Palmer to be ordained—if council approves—at Gouldsboro, May 26; H. B. Tilden who succeeds H. Tilden at Lamoine to be ordained in June. Woodbury resigned at Bluehill, Tripp at Surry, Bartlett at Sedgwick; Harden removed from the county, Cortbell died.

The Bowdoin Quarterly Conference of Free Baptist churches holds its next session with the Free Baptist church of Augusta, June 8-10. This conference represents about forty churches. At the same time there will be a session of the Maine Conference Quarterly Meeting to appoint delegates to the triennial session of the General Conference Union Meeting in New Hampshire in July. Tickets for one fare and good for the round trip are issued on the Maine Central Railroad.

Persons desiring entertainment during the State Conference, which begins its session in Foxcroft, June 15th at 9 A. M. are requested to send in their application for entertainment on or before June 3d. The committee will not hold itself responsible for entertainment of those who do not apply by the above date, except in cases of delegates not then appointed. Persons will also please state how and when they expect to reach Foxcroft. Half fare on the B. & P. Railroad; both tickets to be bought at the out-station. All communications should be addressed to Rev. H. A. Long, chairman.

Last Sabbath was Trinity Sunday and was specially noticeable at the Cathedral in Portland, since it marked the last appearance with this society of Rev. Canon Hayes prior to his departure Monday for his new rectory in Westfield, N. Y. Among those present was the canon-elect, Rev. Mr. Sills of Halifax. At the close of his discourse Mr. Hayes, said: I know how sure an anchorage and how full of help in the striving towards a Christian life it (prayer) has proved to many among us who have tried not only to learn it but to live it. But I trust that beyond this you have learned to look upon the teaching and the work of the Cathedral as a trust not for yourself, not for those who worship here only, but for the whole church of God, and especially for that portion of it, this Diocese, whose great interest all centres here. I am most deeply thankful to have been permitted to bear some part in preparing, so to speak, in laying foundations for more important and visible work of future years; and this is another memory to be laid up and cherished for all time. I am sure that the earnestness of the Bishop and people to whom it is committed will see for greater results from the new life and work of the year to come."

Cuticura

REMEDIES

Have achieved the most noted success of any Medicines of Modern Times.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter have never doubted the specific properties of CUTICURA, CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and CUTICURA SOAP, for the speedy, permanent, and economical cure of Humors of the Blood, Skin, and Scalp. They are, however, astonished at their universal success, for it was to be expected that in the hands of some they would fail solely from spasmodic or ignorant use of them.

They are enabled to say without fear of contradiction that no remedies ever achieved in the short space of one year the number of wonderful cures performed by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

SALT RHEUM

LAW OFFICE OF CHAS. HOUGHTON,
17 Congress Street, Room 6, Boston, Feb. 6th, 1878.

Messrs. WEEKS & POTTER: Gentlemen—I feel it a duty to inform you, and through you all who are interested in knowing the fact, that a most disagreeable and obstinate case of Salt Rheum or Eczema, which has been under my personal observation from its first appearance to the present time—about ten (10) years—covering the greater portion of the patient's body and limbs, with its peculiar irritating and itching scab, and to which all the known methods of treating such a disease had been applied without benefit, has completely disappeared, leaving a clean and healthy skin, under a few days of profuse application of CUTICURA.

I can and do heartily endorse all similarly afflicted to try the remedy which has been so effectual in this case.

Very truly yours,
CHAS. HOUGHTON.

LIVER COMPLAINT

And Dyspepsia Treated by the Most Eminent Physicians Without Benefit Cured by Seven Bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, Costing $1 75 Pounds or One Bottle.

Gentlemen—I have had Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, with running sores on the sides of my neck, for many years. Have had one to six boils at a time for seven years. Have been spending money for relief for years and have got no good. Everything I ate distressed me. Have been cured from first to last by seven bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT and I believe if I had taken another bottle I should have had one and one half pounds of solid flesh. It is doing the business, and I am going for it strong.

Yours truly,
JOHN H. ROY,
113 Warren Ave., Chicago, Ill., Nov. 25, 1878.

NOTE—CUTICURA is the most wonderful of the modern discoveries of extreme physical weakness, when the nervous system is known to lurk in the system, CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier and internal use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, will quickly restore the most powerful blood purifier and liver stimulant in the world.

CUTICURA SOAP is an elegant toilet and nursery requisite to CUTICURA in the treatment of all external ailments. For chapped hands, rough skin, tan, sunburn, and the lesser skin troubles, it is indispensable, and for the toilet, the nursery and bath it is the most elegant, refreshing, and healing before the public.

These great remedies succeed where all others heretofore in use fail. Scientific chemistry, powerful new and original properties never before suspected, only combined in medicine.

The CUTICURA REMEDIES are prepared by WEEKS & POTTER, Chemists and Druggists, Boston, and sold by all Druggists. Price of CUTICURA, small boxes, 50 cents; large boxes, containing two and one-half times the quantity of smaller, RESOLVENT, $1 per bottle. CUTICURA SOAP, 25 cents per cake, by mail, 30 cents. 3 cakes, 75 cents.
